As a Community Support Specialist for Paradigm, Tiffany works closely with the Network Manager to manage the psychosocial aspects of the case and to assist in the injured worker's recovery to achieve better outcomes. This includes providing emotional support to the injured workers and their families, as well as, identifying resources available in the community to ensure individuals and their families get access to emotional health referrals, financial counseling, food scarcity issues, substance abuse treatment, childcare, and more.

Tiffany is a licensed Professional Clinical Counselor in Behavior Health and Therapy and has a bachelor's degree in organizational communication from the Metropolitan State University, as well as a master's degree in Counseling and Psychological Services from Saint Mary's University.

As an experienced clinician, she provides behavioral health support and community resourcing referrals to injured workers and their families. Tiffany hires, trains, and oversees the clinical team of community support specialists.

Providing support, education, coaching, and advocacy for individuals and family members, Tiffany works to ensure adoption and suitability of a continuing care plan, as well as, acting as a liaison between various levels of inpatient and outpatient care facilities, the client, and the family members.
