

David Lupinsky

Vice President, Clinical Product Solutions

david.lupinsky@paradigmcorp.com

As Vice President, Clinical Product Solutions, David is the “Product Owner” within Clinical Solutions. In his role at Paradigm, David is responsible for the clinical quality and overall growth of HERO MSKSM, an industry first care management solution for musculoskeletal injuries. David joined Paradigm following a 16 year career at CorVel, a national third party claims administrator and medical management company specializing in workers’ compensation. David served in various key leadership roles, including most recently as the SVP of Product. Prior to overseeing product, he held the position of VP, Digital Health and Innovation where he founded and developed the award winning Virtual Occupational Telehealth Clinic and Virtual Functional Restoration Program for Pain Management. In earlier years at Corvel, David held roles of VP, Nurse Triage and Claim Intake and VP, Chronic Pain Program. During his career at Corvel, he had many accomplishments with most recent as 2021 Innovator award from Business and Insurance for Virtual Functional Restoration Program.

David is based in California and carries a degree in Biomechanics from UC Davis. In addition to his full time job at Corvel, he used to volunteer and later held position of Program Director at Community Youth Center. This facility used sports / athletics to teach kids from underprivileged communities life skills. As a result of this experience, David has looked at workers compensation through the lens of the athletic model, with the goal of getting employees back in the ‘game’ and treating the whole person (biopsychosocial).